Purpose and aims of statutory measure and the relation thereof to the objectives of the Act

2. The purpose and aims of this statutory measure are to provide financial support to winter cereal information, research and transformation functions, which the winter cereal industry identified as essential and are in the interest of the industry.

The maintenance of macro industry information is deemed essential for strategic planning purposes by the winter cereal industry and directly affected groups. The supply of generic market information to all role players, on a continuous basis, is critical in order for the market to operate effectively.

The winter cereal industry supports the principle that generic market information be obtained by means of statutory measures in terms of the Act and that SAGIS should be the official vehicle to achieve this. SAGIS also operates as official information service for the maize, sorghum and oilseeds industries. A statutory levy is required to ensure that the winter cereal industry shares in the gathering and dissemination of proper market information.

Proper and accurate winter cereal market information, which is provided continuously and timeously, will not only increase market access for all participants, but will also promote efficiency in the marketing of winter cereals and winter cereal products. Proper market information will furthermore enhance the viability of the winter cereal industry and the agricultural sector at large. Market information also enhances food security, as information on national stock levels of winter cereal is available for the market to function properly.

The agricultural sector is expected to ensure food security, strengthen the economy and create job opportunities. This can be reconciled with the provisions of Section 2(3) of the Act. In order to achieve these aims and to further the competitive position of the winter cereal industry continued research is essential.

According to experts in the field of research, the good performance of the South African agricultural sector, despite the lack of high-potential arable land, could to a large extent be attributed to the development and application of agricultural research results. The complex interaction between behavioural patterns of crops and external factors affecting them, such as diseases and pests, often impacts negatively on production and quality, thus creating an urgent demand for new technology in order to keep the agricultural sector profitable. Account should also be taken of consumer preferences within the market.

Specific infrastructure has been created over time in respect of research and it is essential that this infrastructure be retained and maintained to the benefit of the winter cereal industry.

For the optimisation of export earnings it is essential that South African products conform to international quality standards. Researchers and breeders have to ensure that locally produced winter cereal is fully competitive on the international markets.

A significant portion of the funds collected by means of the levy will be focussed on small-scale farmers and the transformation side of the winter cereal industry.

The statutory measure shall be administered by the Winter Cereal Trust. The levies collected shall be administered in separate accounts. The Trust shall be audited in accordance with generally accepted accounting practices.

An increase in research applications have been experienced by the Winter Cereal Trust over the past years, which could not all be accommodated within the available funds of the Trust. Levy funds are required to partly compensate for the diminished funds in respect of research and also to make provision for new research projects to be funded. However, the calculation of a continued levy and the budget of the Winter Cereal Trust are dependent on Government continuing to fund its proportion of winter cereal research.
